Waechter Reports on Investigation in Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Wards.

James A. Waechter, chairman of the Board of Election Commiss ers, announced today that no evidence of fraudulent registration had been found by Dem Republican checkers who investigated charges if improper registra-tion made by the Milligan-for-Sen-ator Committee in the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards. Registration in other wards mentioned in the complaint, including the Twentieth, is being investigated. Waechter said it was found that buildings at 1803-15 and 1933 Biddle street had been razed but that they were occupied at the last reg-istration June 21.

Special delivery letters were sent to judges and clerks by the Election Board today. In addition to copies of the election laws, they stained a letter saying: "The purpose of this letter is to impress upon you the fact that tomorrow' election must be fairly and honestly conducted, that no one be permitted to vote unless qualified and that all ballots be counted as cast." It also was emphasized that all judges, both Democratic and Reng all the difficulties inherent in publican, must count all ballots. Testimony in election contests in

Priest is opposed by Frank X. Reller, chief clerk in the office of Circuit Attorney Miller, and John J. Manton. Priest, the son of Po-lice Commissioner George T. Priest, has the support of William L. Igoe, president of the Police Board, and many ward organizations friendly to Igoe are slating Priest for this reason. While Priest's name is on most of the ward slates, both Reller and Manton have considerable or-

Political observers believe that there will be considerable scratching of the Democratic judicial slate indorsed by the Bar Association, which includes James M. Douglas, H. Chouteau Dyer, Judge James F. Green, Judge O'Neill Ryan, Judge Robert J. Kirkwood, Samuel H. Liberman, J. Wesley McAfee, James F. King and Fidger H. Waynen. E. King and Edgar H. Wayman. Most ward organizations are slat-ing Harry F. Russell instead of Judge Green or Dyer.

Other Democratic candidates for Circuit Judge with organized support include William S. Connor John W. Joynt, William L. Mason Thomas J. Rowe Jr., and Eugene J. Sartorius, the party nominee for Prosecuting Attorney four 'years ago.

Unopposed for Presecutor.

The primary race for prosecutor, the feature of the primary election four years ago, has little interest this year, since both Police Judge Finnegan, Democrat, and Prosecuting Attorney Rosecan, Republican, are unopposed in the primaries.

For Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, most wards are Kickham appeared on most of the ward slates. There are five other candidates, Charles A. Connors, Twenty-eighth Ward Committeeman; J. The Republican Contests.

Most of the interest in the Re-most of the interest in the Republican contests appears centered on the races for Circuit Judge, where the majority of the Republican committeemen and women are supporting the slate indorsed by the Bar Association. This includes Circuit Judges Calhoun, Hoffmeister, Ossing, Pearcy, former Judge William H. Killoren, George L. Stemmler, former State Supreme Court Judge David E. Blair; J. Ray

Court of Criminal Correction, and Alroy S. Phillips.

In some of the wards, however, Richard C. Hart is being slated in place of Phillips and in others Alfred L. Grattendick is being slated in place of Blair. Sigmund Bass, attorney with a wide practice in criminal cases, also has considerable organized support, particularly in the downtown "river" wards. Grattendick is supported by Charles L. Moore, secretary of the Board of Election Commissioners, who also has urged committee License Collector, Cirwho also has urged committee members to indorse J. Marvin Krause, son-in-law of Gov. Park, for the nomination for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

With 416 candidates for State and Moore has denied reports, current in Republican circles that he the committee members supported Krause and Grattendick.

Chapman, Tamme, Koeln. For the other offices on the Republican ticket, the incumbents ap-pear to have most of the ward indorsements. These include License Collector Oliver G. Chapman, Recorder of Deeds William L. Tamme and Collector Edmond Koeln.

Chapman has two opponents, Frank B. Grodzki, a former Pro-visional Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, who has considerable following, as has William J Studt, former Alderman of the Twenty-first Ward. Tamme is op-posed by former Assessor Fred Gehner, who has the support of several ward organizations in North St. Louis, and by Fred W. Evers, Twenty-first Ward committeeman.

Fricke Opposes Koeln. Koeln is opposed by Vourdon

Fricke, a newcomer in politics with little organized support. Republican officials without op-position in the primaries are Circuit Clerk John Schmoll, Gus A. Baur, Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, and William Hoefle, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes.

The congressional races have caused little interest in either Republican or Democratic circles. emocratic candidates are Thomas C. Hennings, Assistant Circuit Attorney, unopposed in the Eleventh District; Congressman James R. Claiborne, Holman East, A. Mal Hoolan, William G. Patton, superintendent of the St. Louis County Hospital, and A. J. Pickett in the Twelfth District; and Joseph A. Lennon and Thomas E. Kelly in the Thirteenth District.

Congressional Candidates.
Republican congressional candidates are former Congressman L. C. Dyer, Eleventh District, unopposed; former Congressmen Cleveland A. Newton and Henry F. Niedringhaus and Grant Brewer and Joseph C. Shroeder in the Twelfth; and former Sheriff George W. Strodtman, unopposed, in the Thirteenth. In the race for Superintendent of Schools, most ward organizations are slating Lloyd W. King of Monroe City, backed by the Pendergast organization in Kansas City, while Republicans appear to favor L. H. Coward of Springfield.

There are also local contests for nominations for State Senator in the three even numbered districts in St. Louis—the Thirtieth, Thirtysecond and Thirty-fourth, and for 19 nominations for State Representative, and Justices of the Peace and Constables in nine districts, two to be selected in the Fourth and Fifth Districts.

BENEFIT TO AID FIREMEN'S SHRINKING PENSION FUND

Heavy Drafts Reduce It Seriously; Legislature to Be Asked to Take Up Matter. To replenish the firemen's relief fund the St. Louis Firemen's Pension Fund Board has indorsed a penefit arrangement in connection with the National Horse Show, at the Arena, Oct. 8 to 13, by which emen will handle the ticket sale and the programs.

The next Legislature will be asked to make some further provision for the firemen's fund, and possibly to change the present system, by which a member of the Fire Department may elect to retire after 20 years' service, regardless of physical conditions, and thereafter receive $50 a month.

The relief fund, which is one of the two funds administered by the fund board, contained $101,381 at the end of 1933, or $23,731 less than it had one year before. The fund receives 3 per cent of the license tax receipts of the city, and these have fallen off heavily in recent years. The retirement fund, to which the firemen contribute, was $82,459 at the end of last year. Demands on the relief fund have increased while the fund has shrunk, and a few more years of progressive decrease would nearly exhaust it. City Register Cullinane is head of the Pension Board, which includes other city officials, four firemen and one pensioner.

City Attacks Provision for New Police Board Taking Away Mayor's Power.

By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6.—City and State officials who have arrayed opposing armed forces against each other for a week, today took their dispute to a civil district court room, with Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's authority over the New Orleans police at stake. Judge Nat W. Bond opened hearing on a acity suit to enjoin the functioning of a new city police board, provided for in a bill pushed through the Legislature by Senattor Huey P. Long.

The bill, providing for taking the police authority away from the Mayor through creation of a special board named by local civic organizations, was described by the Walmsley faction as "reprisal" for defeast of Huey Long candidates by Walmsley men in the last city election. It was attacked in court on the ground of unconstitutionality, the city alleged irregularities marked its passage in the Legislature.

The new board was scheduled to take office last Wednesday, but was restrained from so doing by the city's injunction suit, under which District Court issued a temporary restraininer pending today's hearing.

Senator Long, his bitter antag-onist, had temporarily dropped out of sight after visiting for several days in the executive mansion at Baton Rouge.

George Wallace and James O'Con-nor, both assistant Louisiana at-torneys-general, appeared to defend the legislative act.

Mayor Walmsley said he would keep the City Hall strongly guarded by policemen with machine guns while Long and Gov. O. K. Allen retain possession of the voters' registration office building with the State militia.

"When the guardsmen are moved," added the Mayor, "we'll remove our men—but not until then."

Only narrow Lafayette street seponly narrow Largette street separates the opposing strongholds.

Last night as the police observed the transfer of a foad of sub-machine guns into the National Guard camp, they uncovered their 14 sub-machine guns in City Hall and announced they were ready for any Adjutant-General Raymond H. Adjutant-General Raymond H. Fleming, commander of the National Guard, was reported to have gone to Alexandria, where the National Guard is holding an encampment. Parish deputies have been seeking him for several days to serve injunction papers ordering the demobilization of the troops in New Orleans.

Senator Long accepted service of the injunction order and was instructed to appear tomorrow morning in Civil District Court to show cause why the troops should not be disbanded.

In addition, Lieut, Numa P. Avendano, immediately in charge of the guardsmen at the registration office, has been cited by the Court of Civil Judge Nat W. Bond to appear Thursday morning and an-swer to contempt charges for fail-ing to recognize the terms of the injunction which ordered the troops

The lid appeared to have been clamped down on gambling in New Orleans today when city police ordered a ban on games of chance sponsored by civic and church organizations, after raiding a lotto party given by the Ninth Ward Protective Association.

"The purpose of my order was to avoid even a technical excuse for Gov. Allen's National Guard to invade the city of New Orleans," Police Superintendent Reyer explained.

Redbirds 7 1-2 Games Ahead of Braves, But 6 1-2 Behind Giants

By J. Roy Stockton

Frankie Frisch and his Cardinals, who have talked about the pennant race thus far in terms of the margins separating them from second and first place, today nursed their wounds, smoothed bedraggled plumage, and furtively cast eyes in the other direction to note

Some comfort was to be found in that perspective. Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves are seven and a half games behind the Redbirds and the pesky Pirates of Pie Traynor are nine games to the rear. And so perhaps it would be well to forget about the first place margin of the Giants and the second place advantage of the Cubs, and accept the Redbirds as outstanding candidates for third money in the National League pennant race.

Perhaps smouldering embers of championship hope still linger in the stouter Cardinal hearts, but the Pirates' double victory of yesterme comfort was to be the stouter Cardinal hearts, but the Pirates' double victory of yesterday afternoon, and the way the triumphs were registered, convinced most of the 13,500 customers and undoubtedly many of the St. Louis players that no important checks would be mailed by Judge Landis in October to employes of Sam Breadon. The Glants have increased their lead over the Cards to six and one-half sames and they creased their lead over the Cards to six and one-half games and they seem to be "going away." The Cubs cling tenaciously to the heels of the world champions, but are

Until the Redbirds return, St. Louis will be without major league baseball, as the Browns also are on the road. Larry French, who had relieved Swift after Durocher's homer, bunted and both runners were safe when Grace beat Paul Dean's to Frisch at third. Lloyd Waner then inserted a single to center and Grace scored the tying run. Paul Waner and Lindstrom flied out, but Vaughan doubled to right, scoring French to put the Pirates ahead.

Then the Cardinals gave the enemy an extra run. Suhr hit to Collins and the Ripper might have made the play at first unaided. He should have tried for the play. Battered Browns Rest Before Facing Tigers; Two Regulars Injured

By James M. Gould Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

DETROIT, Aug. 6.-If there ever was a ball club that welned a rest the Browns, here today with nothing to do until tomorrow, are that club. WINS, 4-3, IN SOFTBALL GAME

By Harold Tuthill

Matt Ruppert, reputed king of softball, was only a jester, as the Primas, of Chicago, claimants to the world's championship, closed the world's championship, closed their two-day stand with a 4 to 3 victory in 12 innings over a picked team from Sisier's South Side Park last night. The attendance was estimated at 5000.

Judging by the showing made by two St. Louis All-Star teams, for the North Side aggregation lost Saturday night, 7 to 1, softball in St. Louis must be of a better variety than elsewhere. Ruppert brought his team here with a string of 163 shutouts, so he says, and then on consecutive nights the Primas were scored upon.

then on consecutive nights the Primas were scored upon.

And if this weren't bad enough from the Primas' standpoint, the three runs counted by the All-Stars in the seventh inning were made against Ruppert, who is supposed to hold many no-hit, no-run records in which the consecution want counter. in which the opposition went down, one, two, three, four all the way up to 27. Besides this he says he car oitch two games in success throwing the ball with his left hand and the second with his right. Ruppert Uses Only His Right. Ruppert didn't have much sucone he used, against the All-Stars, for he relieved Coon Rosen in the seventh and promptly walked the first two batters. In justice to Rup-pert it may be said that he had a severe cold which prevented him from talking in more than a whis-per, and his pitching certainly wasn't much stronger. Then after two were out, Eckhard also walked, filling the bases. Up strode Hap Eddens and he slapped out a triple to left center, scoring Wickman, Schnell and Eckhard. That put the All-Stars ahead, 3 to 1.

Then Jack Schnell, who pitched fine ball, aided by a stout defense which turned in two double plays weakened in the ninth and the Primas counted twice to tie the score at 3-all. When it came time fans and the All-Stars protested so vigorously against what they claimed was lack of sportsmanship, that Ruppert resumed his place and hurled for that inning. Rosen returned in the tenth and was only found for one hit, a double by Wickman, so his record was one hit, no runs in nine innings as compared to three runs, three hits in three innings off Ruppert.

The winning run was scored in the twelfth when Statz doubled for Lundine's double to left center. After seeing three representative

Senate Report on Wall Street Inquiry Charges Investment Bankers Betrayed Their Trust Clay Object Long Exhibited by Incompetence, Negligence and Cupidity Cited in Unmerciful Attack on Preferred Lists and Foreign Loans.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. — Failure of investment bankers to keep the trust imposed in them by investors with the resulting losses of billions of dollars was emphasized in the second chapter of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee's report on its Wall Street mittee's report on its Wall Street investigation. A preliminary copy of the chapter was made public tonight.

The second chapter, the equivalent to a 100-page booklet, listed among the evils found by the investigating committee such abuses as "preferred lists," speculation by investment bankers through affiliates, pegging of the markets, excessive spreads between buying and selling prices and underwriting of unsound securities, particularly ford securities, particularly foreign securities.

"Many of the abuses in investment banking," the report said, have resulted from the incompetence negligence, irresponsibility or cupidity of individuals in the profession. Such abuses can only be eliminated by the elimination of eliminated by the elimination of eliminated by the such as the same and the securities accept such favors, it is also that the temptation exists the same and the securities accept such favors, it is also that the temptation exists the same and the securities accept such favors, it is also that the temptation exists the same and fession. These affiliates have been employed as instrumentalities by commercial banks to speculate in their own stock, to participate in market opstock, to participate in market op-erations designed to manipulate the price of securities and to con-duct other operations in which commercial banks are forbidden by law to engage.

"Commercial banks did not hesi tate to violate their fiduciary duty to depositors seeking disinterested investment counsel by referring such inquiries to their affiliates. The affiliates unloaded securities owned by them on unsuspecting in-vestors and depositors.

The activities of investment affiliates encouraged speculation by of-ficers and directors of commercial banks and resulted in the payment of excessive compensation and profit to these officials."

After citing in detail several of tor-flotations of foreign loans, the report continued:

"The record of activities of investment bankers in the flotation of foreign securities is one of the most scandalous chapters in the history of American investment banking. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Defends the Sympathetic Strike. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

Y OUR editorial on the San Francisco strike was all that any working man uld ask from a paper that has been fair and decent in all matters of that Milwaukee type who were the "Reds"; now it is the Communists.

Your one mistake is that you are opposed to sympathetic strikes. I don't question your sincerity, but does not the following prove it is the only hope for the worker? Employers are banded to-gether in "one big union"—the chambers of commerce, manufacturers' associations, etc. Didn't a professional strike-breaker of the Pacific coast say, "I'll have 1000 'guards' here in a few days"? And were not those "guards" the so-called vigilantes and policemen in civilian clothes? Did you notice the close co-operation of the vigilantes and the police? The police always arrived after Edgar H. Wayman the wrecking and slugging of the "Reds." H. Chouseau Dyer But we who understand, know that they J. Wesley McAfee were watching in the distance in case the vigilantes got in a tight place. They did not stop their wrecking and slugging, but were there as reinforcements, "to protect life and property"—they protected the workers' property, if their pals were getting the hot end.

When an employer has any labor trou-ble, his brother members of the chambers of commerce and kindred organization give him all the help they can. The abolition of the sympathetic strike means one union on strike must go it alone against the united forces of the employers, who use the courts, police and strike breaking "guards" against them. What chance have they?

In a strike, as in San Francisco, an SOS is sent out to all nearby cities to send sluggers. That was the army of "vigi-lantes" that worked in San Francisco. We had some of them here in the building material strike a year ago.

IT HAS often been remarked that St. Louis is most fortunate in having as one of its show places the Municipal Opera. However, there exists a condition extremely irritating to those patrons in the immediate vicinity of the disturbance. I refer to the annoying habit of a number of persons in coming late, very often during the presentation of the sec-ond and even the third scenes. Near the end of the opera, an alarming number of noisy persons leave, usually in the middle of the concluding scene, thus decreasing the enjoyment of the faithful few who are courteous enough to remain, even though they, too, may desire to avoid traf-

I would suggest that persons arriving after the beginning of the production be not permitted to take their seats while the prevailing scene is unfolding, but be asked to remain in the side aisles and back until an intermission. With regard to the conversation and the early leave taking, I think this can be remedied only by those persons most concerned, and I am sure that if they only realized the effect their thoughtlessness has upon others, they would be considerate enough to mend the conditions. E. J. CRAFE.

In some respects, Undersecretary Tugwell's recent defense of the AAA was a shabby exhibition. Critics of the Agriculture Department's policies were denounced as "Tories," as "reactionary obscurantists," as "infantile," "wicked," "obscene," "indecent." And if the vote goes against the employer, the Labor Trustee has power to set it aside.

Some of these shop elections have recently taken place, and reports of the outcome add to the accu mulating evidence of dissatisfaction with Nazi rule in Germany. The Government has not published the results, but they have come to this country through unofficial channels. Of 1500 workers in an armament factory, 150 voted No, 250 crossed out the list, 400 altered it and only 700 gave approval. The workers at the Plinius factories, near Berlin, refused to vote. At another place, 1350 of 2300 employes voted, and these cast only 700 votes for the official list. At the Ullstein publishing plant, 4000 workers returned only 2070 valid votes. At another establishment, with 500 workers, only 174 ballots for Nazi candidates were cast. And so it has gone.

Workers by the thousands have turned out to Nazi gatherings, and with apparent enthusiasm. These results indicate, however, that labor remem bers its treatment in the early days of the Nazi regime and resents its present plight. Though Hitler now holds greater authority than any other ruler of modern times, his "united Germany" includes many discontented elements, only awaiting their opportunity, and the workers are not the least among these

TRICKY NAMES.

It is a curious fact, suitable for hot-weather cogitation, that really difficult names are not the ones that most frequently turn up misspelled in print. Few are so orthographically talented as to hazard spelling the tough ones by memory. Hence, writers and proofreaders carefully check such jaw-breakers Djugashvilli (now Stalin), Dikran Kouyoumdjian (Michael Arlen in the original Armenian) and Pehr Evind Svinhufvud (President of Finland).

SIMPLER POSTOFFICES

Simplicity, not grandeur, henceforth will be the keynote in postoffice construction, says Secretary Morgenthau. And since he holds the purse-strings of he Treasury, he has authority to say: "It is quite definitely the end of the monumental period." This is a logical step, from both the esthetic and econom ical viewpoints. The rococo movie-palace style of architecture is speedily outmoded. It presents a sad apearance when grime and smoke and time get in their work. The monetary saving will enable construction of more postoffices, without sacrifice of eficiency, thereby curtailing the Postoffice Department's heavy disbursements for rented quarters.

Mr. Morgenthau does not contemplate buildings of factory style, but practical, utilitarian structures along lines of dignified simplicity. The step indicates a sense of official responsibility, as well as the progress of architectural evolution away from the ginger-bread effects of a more expansive day.

ONE REALLY PROMISING AMERICAN MOVEMENT.

Setbacks for the Peace Cause

Inefficacy of League, Kellogg Pact and disarmament efforts have wrecked hopes of workers for world peace, writer says; lays failure to insincerity of nations and delusions of pacifism's exponents; thinks success can be won, not by emotional appeals, but by attacking economic and nationalistic conditions that breed war.

Nathaniel Peffer in Harper's Magazine; Reprinted by Permission.

THE workers for peace are in the depths. They are publicly confessing the collapse of the hopes they had cherished since 1919. They have reason to be dejected. The so-called peace structure erected since then has manifestly toppled. The League of Nations is relegated to trivial issues or benevolent generalities. The Kellogg Pact is an almost forgotten formula. There is no longer even a pretense of intention to disarm.

Despite all the flamboyant pronouncesive commitments to a new international order, and the multiplicity of conferences, ommissions and other devices of organization, the progress toward abolition or control of war since 1919 is negligible. The net result is revealed as nil.

From all of this it does not follow, however, that war is inevitable, that it is innate in the scheme of things or "human nature."
To the contrary, never before has it been so clear that war is preventable, provided men will pay the price for preventing it. Never before has it been so clear what are the causes of war and how they might be controlled. One can say that never before has there been so good a chance for peace and never before so little hope of peace.

and never before so little hope of peace.

The failure of all the supposed efforts since 1919 proves nothing. The point is that there have been no efforts. What has been so construed—the magniloquence, the rhetoric, the enunciation of formulas, the elaborate paraphernalia—has been either piffling or pretense and, therefore, futile. On the part of governments and those for whom no attempt to make any efforts for peace.
Actually, nothing more has been done to prevent war since 1919 than before 1914. Failure? There has been no failure. There has been only nullity.

What is this peace structure whose collapse is now mourned? The League of Nations, in its origin, was a sop to Woodrow Wilson and a consolation to genuine Wilsonians in the Allied countries who had been sickened by the war and responded to the prospect of a fairney world. the prospect of a fairer world. It has been little more since then.

On the part of those classes that wield authority, there has never been any intention or desire that it be anything else. There has never been any intention or desire to effectuate the ideas implicit in the Covenant. There has been no sign of willingness to subordinate national sovereignty to review by any international organ or to subject national acts, policies, ambitions or economic interests to veto by any international government. In the sense implied by the Covenant, the League has been taken seriously only by certain nice but naive classes in America.

Had those who really cared about interin America.

Had those who really cared about international organization for peace remained astringently ekeptical, squarely recognized how strong was the opposition to any change, and mobilised their energies to prevent sabotage of the League and the League idea, eventually there might have been a functioning League. At least, by pointing out derelictions and betrayals by omission, they might have galvanized public opinion, for many years left diagrentled by the war.

But he who registered doubts-doubts founded on the most palpable facts of Euro-pean politics—was branded a mocker and an outcast from high principle. And now the League is s'nking into desuetude.

But the League has not failed. There has been no League. There has been no effort to bring it into being. And there is no more reason to believe now than there was in 1913 that the idea of international supervision is impracticable.

Is argument necessary concerning the Kellogg Pact? The Powers bound themday that they signed the pledge every one of them, the United States included, steadfastly refused to reduce by one unit the instruments and weapons that can be used only in war. And hundreds of thousands of men and women in America, men and women of education, of position and with opportunities to observe their world, deduced from those two pieces of synchronous and contiguous evidence that the Kellogg Pact had become the law of nations and that war

So when Japan did use force to accomplish its aims in Manchuria, they first were shocked, then something deep within them was wounded, then they were morally outwas wounded, then they were morally outraged and cried for vengeance on the outlaw. As a matter of fact, whatever may be said of Japan (and that its recent acts are anti-social and inimical to the hope of an ordered, civilized world is self-evident) it can also be said, first, that Japan read its world aright, and, second, that it can be credited at least with intellectual honesty.

It assumed that the proclamations of a new dispensation were only a concession to a certain post-war sentiment in the West and were not to be permitted to interfere with any nation's method of pursuing the ends its controlling groups deemed essential. It assumed that no nation would be restrained from using all the physical force it commanded whenever the necessity arose and the occasion was propitious.

What was wrong in that reasoning? What nation had abandoned any ambition or policy it was strong enough to maintain? What nation had reduced the strength necessary to maintain ambitions or policies?

What need be said of disarmament in 1934? I take it that everybody admits that there will be no disarmament. But that is not new. All that has changed is that the pretarse is being formally abandoned.

Never since 1919 has there been any chance of disarmament. Never since then has there been, on the part of those who make decisions in the important countries, any intention, willingness or desire to disarm. And nobody in Europe with any knowledge of public affairs has ever had the remotest expectation of disarmament. At the most, some may have had faint hopes. Disarmament has been an American mirage, and all the talk about it here has been adolescent prattle, without the charm of youth's freshness. I do not mean that the advocates of peace are insincere. They are sincere. That is what is so sad. For their cause is the highest in the world. Mancould have up higher earthly goal than that of emancipating himself from the curse of war. If ever there was a cause worth enlisting the best faculties of the race, it is that of abolishing war.

Never was its appeal so urgent as now.

We live among war's ruins now, and more is threatened. It is not a moral issue now; t is a matter of survival.

Those who profit by war or do not mind war or prefer it to losing what must be lost if there is to be peace—they beguile themselves with no fancies and feed on no illusions. They know what they want and move reientlessly to secure it. Perhaps what they want is suicidal for them too in the end, but that is beside the point. The militarist, the foreign-concession hunter, the trading corporation seeking a market, and the diplomat maneuvering for territory for his country's honor and his friends' profit know their goal, appraise the obstacles correctly, and use means calculated to attain

Those who oppose war have not been de-ceated. They have not fought yet. They lated. They have not even recognized the enemy. They thought that peace could be secured by appeals to idealism and maintained by devices of organization, as if war resulted only from lack of right thinking.

What makes war is that there are irreconcilable conflicts of interest which offer no basis of co-operation. That the causes of war may have something to do with nationalism and national aggrandizement for economic expansion, and that economic exsconomic expansion, and that economic ex-pansion may have something to do with con-ditions imposed by the results of the indus-trial system, and that the urge to economic expansion may be the only alternative to internal economic collapse—all this is ig-nored as if it were not. Naturally, for to face such considerations is to acknowledge that no exactive will be a quick gurant that no specific will be a quick cure-all, which is less satisfying than to institute co-operation by legislative enactment.

There is emotional glow only in wooling the progress that comes with a bound and by invocation. What matter that progress never has come that way in human history?

The causes of war cannot be wished away by expertation or annulled by least proglenever has come that way in human history?

The causes of war cannot be wished away by exhortation or annulled by legal proclamation; neither, however, are they innate in the universe, like death and climate and the tide. They are controllable if sufficient effort of the right kind be taken and if the price be paid. There can be no peace except at a price, and the price is the surrender of those objects and advantages which can be obtained only by war. Not only the malevolent benefit from those advantages. To surrender imperialistic perquisitea, including foreign markets, penalizes all alike.

It is not certain that we are willing; even the most vociferously idealistic of us, either to accept the retrogression in standard of living which would be entailed or to make the drastic and painful social changes which are the only alternative.

This is far from saying, however, that war is ineradicable. It can be eradicated, but only if those who devote themselves to the task recognise its dimensions and measure up to them. They must be relentlessly clear-sighted, tough-minded, hard-bitten, worldly wise, incredulous, jaundiced in their skepticism of words unsupported by deed, and deaf to mellifluous rhetoric and the glib grandiloquepes of easy idealism. Because they have not been, the war system is as strongly intrenched as it ever was.

His neighbor Jamison interrupted.

"Yes, things is better in the mines now this man has come in."
"What man do you mean?"
"Why, Roosevelt. You heard of him, ain't you? We had scab times before ever since '25 when the unions broke down. Now he's making things better. Yes, sir, he's the laborer's friend."

"And Mrs. Roosevelt," prompted Doak. "She come here last winter when we was livin at the Mansion House—just the workin men, you know, and she sat down to dinner with us and talked to us and then old us to ask her questions. I'll tell you what she is-she's just Whatever may be the pros and cons, one thing is reasonably certain. The outcome of the experiment will depend primarily upon the calibre of the homesteaders.

Doak, a homesteader who looks to feed them, working through the week and going home on Sunday too frail ever to have mined coal, volunteered an indirect explanation of this psychology.

"I never heard my alarm clock had not be said."

The men all lived together at the Mansion House with a cook to feed them, working through the week and going home on Sunday to tell the folks about it.

The co-operative idea during this period functioned perfectly. But in the future I came here, he said. "I The present plan is the establish.

the future it may be more difficult. The present plan is the establishment of a factory near Arthurdale which will give a living wage to each head of a family.

In addition, each homesteader has his garden patch capable of raising more vegetables than he needs. This surplus is to be traded in at the co-ceptative store. No cash is given in return, but a credit, against which the homesteader can draw shoes, shirts, butter and milk until his credit is exhausted. "Subsistence," they point out, is a modest word for what is being done at Arthurdale when one considers the artificial lake, the free agricultural service from the University of West Virginia and the two little red fire wagons in white uses, ready to protect Arthurdale from flames.

In reply, those who manage the project point out that these miners were on relief rolls before they tell you what she is—she's just like an old-fashioned mother."

Disillusionment?

AITH is so strong, devotion so deep in these people that one wonders what may be their distillusionment should their Utopian dream be punctured. What also are their chances of self-support? And come to Arthurdale, that the Government is merely investing its money and that the principal will be paid back. Finally they point out that a higher standard of living is created, with expanding desires and an increased market.

So far the co-operative plan has worked successfully. There is no indication that the paternal hand has spoiled them. Work is still hard. It was their own labor that, through sub-zero weather last winter, cleared the land of scrub and brush, drained the swamps, laid the

The majority of the members are from the Southwest, the territory covered by St. Louis wholesalers. In an effort to make this the largest convention yet held, 20,000 letters of nvitation with Mayor Dickmann's signature were sent to retailers in the St. Louis trade area.

When a passenger on a Cotton Belt train from the South which arrived at Union Station yesterday mornin, forgot or neglected to carry saway a small black handbag, the bag, as is customary, was taken to the station master's office and opened, to determine whether there was anything perishable inside.

When he hadn't appeared this morning, they called the Zoo, and R. Marlin Perkins, herptologist, took over the sacks. In them he found: Six diamond-back water snakes; three poisonous cotton-mouth moccasins; four blotched water sn snakes; one baby spreading adder; two lesuers terrapins and three

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 6.—
James A. Patterson, Texas penitentiary guard, charged with implication in the break on July 22 by three condemned killers, has confessed. Warden W. W. Wald said, that he smuggled three automatic pistols into the prison for an unannounced amount of money.

Lee Simmons, general manager of the prison system, said the statement was obtained after hours of questioning. The weapons were used by Raymond Hamilton, Joe Paimer and Irvin (Blackie) Thompson, inmates of the death house, to make their way to freedom.

Patterson, arrested last week on a charge of smuggling the weapons into the prison, admitted, Simmons said, in an earlier signed statement, that he was paid $600 to point out to a convict implicated in the break a spot on the prison baseball dismond where "some letters were cached."

Metals Move Up for Gains of 1 to More Than 2 4 Points-Late Tone Is Ir-

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.-Stocks ade a partial recovery from acmoved up for net gains of 1 to more than 2 points. The late tone was errgular. Union Pacific continued off nearly 3 late, while American Telephone and U. S. Steel reduced 2-point losses to fractions. U. S. Smelting rose about 4 net. Transfers were expected to approximate 800,000 shares.

Stocks absorbed a flurry of selling in the first hour which depressed a number of leaders 1 to 4 points, some to new lows for the year, but prices later recovered carriers totaled $41,836,301, compared with $59,831291 in the like 1933 month, despite the fact gross revenues were somewhat larger.

The dollar was firm in early foreign exchange dealings. The British pound opened unchanged at $5.04%. French francs were off .00% of a cent at 6.60% cents.

Exports to Russia Up $1,806,800.

By the Associated Press.

A joint report from France's six major railway lines showed a drop of 246,394,000 francs in receipts for the first 29 weeks of 1924, as compared with the same period dropped more than 6 per cent.

Equally significant was the financial ministry's report, showing that tax receipts for the first six months of 1934 were 1,500,000,000 francs below budgetary estimates.

The ministry attributed this to the loss of import duties through the French protection policy necessomewhat lower.

Canadian Exchanges Good. WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—American exports to Soviet Russia were shown by Department of Commerce figures today to have been more than seven times as great in June this year as in the same month in 1953, amounting to $1,765,000 as compared to $242,000. Imports from Russia increased only slightly. Exports to other countries continued to increase although French, Italian and German purchases were somewhat lower.

Dear Miss Sullavan: -

To be easy on the throat, a cigarette must be made of mild, slow-burning tobaccos. But some people make the mistake of confusing mildness with flatness.

As a matter of fact, the smoothest and mildest tobaccos are also the best tastingthe most enjoyable to smoke. The same sunripening and aging that help to develop smoothness impart flavor and character, too.

So it's not strange, after all, that Old Golds possess both taste appeal and throat-ease to such a marked degree. For in the choicest tobaccos these two virtues just naturally go hand in hand.

(Copyright, 1934.)

ARL BEATTY, Admiral of the British fleet, has common sense. He thinks Britain should regulate her own naval strength, decide questions of defense for herself, not asking opinion or permission from other countries. Many Americans feel the same about their own national defense, and wonder why a people of 123,000,000 should be less independent than Washington's U. S. A. of 4,000,000.

Admiral Beatty who wants Britain to "throw off the shackles of international agreements" and do as it thinks best, speke from the deck of Nelson's old wooden flagship, Victory, at the beginning of British navy week. As he complained of England's "pitiful weakness at sea," Beatty had near him on one hand the British fighting ship "Hood," largest warship and fastest battle cruiser in the world," and nearby the "Nelson," finished in 1927, "the world's most powerful battleship."

The country which actually allowed England to tell us that our

The country which actually allowed England to tell us that our guns must not be elevated to produce a longer range has no ships to compare with the two mentioned.

For comic relief, as you consider our lack of adequate defense, you may read a speech by Gen. Tanaka, formerly Japanese military attache at Washington. This gentleman, apparently lacking the usual diplomatic tact of experienced Japannese, calls "insolent" President Roosevelt's speech concerning the efficiency of the United States naval base at Hawati. He resents what he calls the President's "loud praise" which, of course, was intended as a compliment to the navy men in charge. charge.

Suppose an American official spoke in similar terms of the Japanese Emperor, what excitement would ensue. We do not claim for F. D. Roosevelt any parentage of the sun, moon or stars, but we do assert his right to praise any unit of national defense if he chooses to do so. Enough intelligent Japanese have crossed this country and gone up and down in it to let Japan know that the United States proposes to protect and rule its side of the Pacific, and is able to do so.

Some of our best minds that have been shipping dollars and securities to Canada for safekeeping, out of the reach of our "radical confiscatory" Government, will shudder reading the speech of Harry Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce. This gentleman says "big business," made up of "unscrupulous financiers and business men," exploited Canada's consuming public, starved her producers, sweated her workmen, ducers, sweated her workmen, gouged her pulp, paper and other industries, and left her with a choice of reform, dictatorship or

All that you may read in a pam-phlet, signed and published, and considered the start of a Canadian considered the start of a Canadian "new deal," and poor innocent American capitalists thought Canada was smooth, safe, a haven for the man with money and afraid of his shadow. Is there no place where the rich man may lay his head and his money in peace?

That text about being "fearfully and wonderfully made" applies especially to young babies. We know that young babies have big brains, in proportion three times bigger than the adult brain, which makes it dangerous to excite them, sending all the blood to the young brain, away from the small stomach.

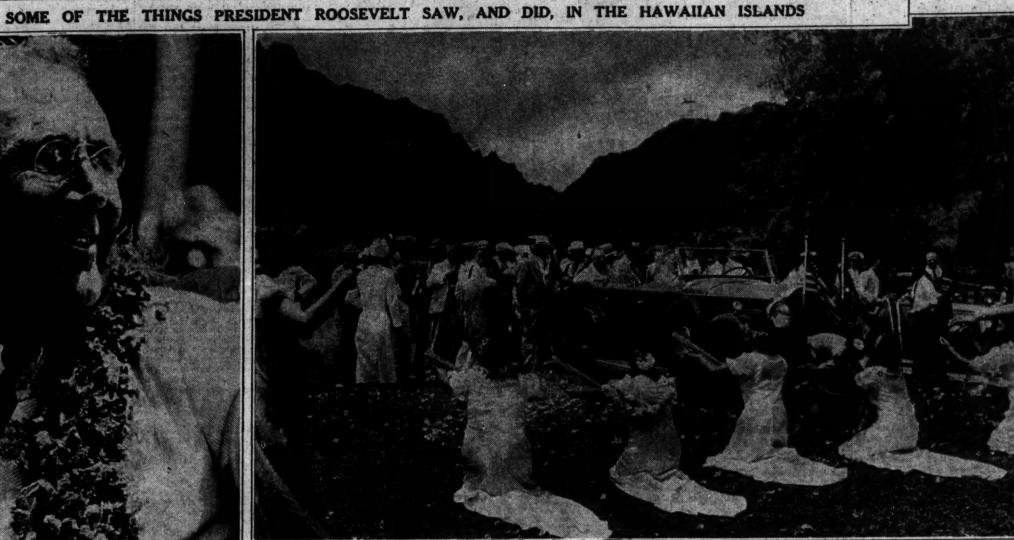

We knew also that baby has an enormous liver, far bigger in pro-portion than his father's, in which portion than his father's, in which enough iron is stored up to take him through his milk diet days, milk containing no iron, although otherwise a wonderful food. Only now do we learn, from scientific highbrows of the University of Strasburg, that infants, up to the age of five months, manufacture in abundance their own vitamin C, essential to life and later extracted from orange juice, fresh veretables. sential to life and later extracted from orange juice, fresh vegetables, fruit, tomato juice. Without this vitamin, young children would die of scorbutic diseases. They gradually lose the vitamin C producing power, between 5 and 14 months of age. After that, food must supply the vitamin. Evening Frocks Lend Color to Style Parade

White embroidered organdie fashioned the lovely frock worn by Mrs. Myron Goldman. This was especially effective with its straight line to the knees and its bouffant hem. A wide ruching of the material edged the top of the knee flounce and served to emphasize the contrast between the straightness of the upper section of the ness of the upper section of the skirt and the fullness of the lower. A striking color scheme of red and white was chosen by Mrs. Leo Rosenheim. Her frock was of white swiss dotted with red. It was cut with a graceful line, the skirt being floor length and the bodice low in the back. To emphasize the predominant note of the red, Mrs. Rosenheim wore a sash of red velvet which was tied in a large bow with short ends. ws of matching velvet adorned the shoulder line.

Among the informal evening frocks that attracted favorable ment was that of Mrs. Mont Levy. This was of chartreuse and wine colored striped chiffon and was ankle length. Now he was on his way home. He had been around a good deal and that was fun. But it was always even more fun to be getting back to Puddle Muddle.

As usual, however, something came up that was to shorten the life of Marie Dressler's financial independence. She bought a Vermont farm. She saw the place, at Windsor, while on a motor trip, and "just had to own it."

For the first time in her life she was making much more than required for family obligations. Her salary was 35000 a week plus a share o the profits from "Tille." She was entitled to some luxuries. She had slaved to achieve them. Of this experience she once said:

"The place had barns for 16 cows. so I bought 16 cows. I shall never forget now happy I was when I got a slip showing I had made 390 on the carn things. But bills followed showing it had cost me $201 to make the $90. Then I got a chance to sell the cows.

Children Have Right to Keep Mental Privacy

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

M RS. SMITH was a very inquis-tive mother. She did not like to feel that her children could to feel that her children could RS. SMITH was a very inquisihave a thought which they did not confide to her.

While the children were small she was pretty well satisfied that she was "in the know," but little by little she found them hiding their inmost thoughts from her, and resenting her probings. They even seemed to avoid her, and to be building up barriers against her.

Children, like adults, have a right to mental privacy. No one wishes to go about in a state of emotional and spiritual undress even to his nearest and dearest, and the mother who tries to force such unre-served frankness on her children these and study them at their lei-sure. Left to themselves the children might talk freely, but conscious always of the pressure brought to bear upon them, they tend to hide not only their secreta, but even the commonplace thoughts and actions of their daily lives.

A confidence, to be worth anything, must be spontaneous. The child whose right to privacy in thought and action is respected, and who feels free to say or leave unsaid what he likes, who is, in short, treated like an individual, is far more apt to be responsive than ROCHET steps to the fore and offers an attractive and practical solution, for the handling of hot dishes on the table and of hot pots and pans in the kitchen. The crocheted potholders are made of the heaviest crochet cotton (the same as candlewicking). They are done in white and a color or two colors and so offer the chance to get another gay color accent in your kitchen. Needless to say, the heavy cotton makes it possible to do them in a jiffy. The hot plate mats (the large one measures 11 inches, the smaller one 6 inches) are in a pop-corn design—nice, fat popoorns that protect the table and still make they're so nice and thick! The string so commonly seen now in crochet is used. But even if they are an ample protection to the table, they still have sufficient openwork to set off the design. When just a single thread is used, these mats turn out much smaller and make effective woven into our life.

The faith that purity is better than impurity, that honor is nobler than dishonor, that truth is holler than lies, is vital both for the making of character and the conduct of life, as all must agree.

If a man comes down on the wrong side of such issues, we suspect not only his brains, but a moral bias or blindness in him, whatever his gifts may be. If he uses blinkers in such beliefs, he will use them in his acts. Such basic beliefs matter profoundly for each man of us.

In reaction against what it deems the over-beliefs of other days, our generation has fallen into an under-belief. No man is so tempted to believe too little as the man who began by believing too much. What we need is not faith in what we need is not faith in more things, but more faith in a few profound things. We are moved most deeply not by the many things we try to believe, but by the real things we cannot deny.

Therefore was in the living room looking bleakly out the window when her older brother Jack joined her. She didn't look up. This was strange, for usually she was dancing or akipping about the house.

He went to her side and laid his hand gently on her shoulder. "What's the trouble, sis?"

He pulled over a chair with his foot, dropped into it, and, facing her, seized her hands and demanded: "Now, see here, young woman, you tell me what's eating you."

Between, sobs Katherine told Jack her story. It ran about like this: Six months ago while attending a community dance she met a young chap named Dick Rollin with whom she had fallen in love. He, apparently, returned her affection, but not once had he so much as spoken a word of his emotional reaction. And last night when he had stepped into the dance he had stepped into the darkened hallway with her. She had moved closed to him, so close that her lips were almost against his. "I'm sure, Jack. I've told mother and dad about him. They know his people. He's in the insurance business. He - . . . he's the sort of man I've always dreamed of marrying."

Jack nodded understandingly. "I rying."

Jack nodded understandingly. "I know, sis. . . I know. . . . "He smiled broadly as he stared down at her. . . "All right, child. . . You go to your dance. By the way, does he drive?"

"Yes, he has his own car."

"Which way does he go?"

"Straight up Main street."

"How does he come home?"

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These enswers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

Dr. Alfred Adler, famous psychologist, in the Journal of Delinquency, says that without realizing it, most of us probably would not give much to charity if it did not give much to charity if it did not give much to charity if it did not give us a feeling of superiority and importance. We all get what Herbert Speneer called "a surplus of agreeable feeling" in being able to hand out relief to some one less fortunate. But, luckily, whatever may be our psychology the other fellow gets just as much good out of it.
